The higher the yield, the higher the risk!

In most markets high yield products become more and more important. In addition, the development of new communication technologies like the Internet leads to an increasing of transparency and more competitive markets. As a consequence, risk-assessment and -management gets increasingly important as well. In context of this situation new tools are necessary. Meteodat GmbH is aiming to a leadership in consulting of innovative products with an over-the-average yield and the corresponding risk tools.

The ever growing importance of high yield products and their risk control was motivating us to establish the dedicated homepage www.risk-solution.ch.

As a spin-off company of the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology (ETH), Zurich, the members of our risk-management team are aspiring to top level consultancy.

Meteodat GmbH has a broad international experience in consultancy within three continents: Asia, South America and Europe.
